

Why Living Donation?

95,000 Americans are currently waiting for a kidney and almost 14,000 are waiting for a liver (combined – 95% of the transplant waiting list), two organs that could be donated by a living person.

You have only 1 in 333 chance of donating an organ after death.

Kidneys from living donors last longer, on average, than those received from deceased donors

Did You Know?

- You are more likely to end up on the transplant wait list than to become a deceased donor.
- Deceased organ donors must pass away under very specific circumstances and those waiting on the list cannot rely on deceased donations to save their lives.

At the American Transplant Foundation, we believe that no one should die while awaiting a lifesaving organ transplant.

We proactively work to save lives by removing barriers to living donation through 3 tiers of support: Educational, Financial & Mentorship.

Education brings to light a person's ability to save a life through living & deceased organ donation, ultimately putting a stop to over 6,000 PREVENTABLE DEATHS each year.
